Contemplation

Continuation of Immaculate Conception Academy Commencement Address

by Dr. John Tardiff on June 5, 2021

...Prudence, then very much requires a clear perception of reality. So too, does contemplation. For what is contemplation, but the knowledge of the truth for its own sake, the quiet vision of truth wherein we delight in and affirm it as both true and good? In contemplation we receive a little fulfillment of our intellectual nature, which desires all truth. This is what ICA intends you to be – both prudent and contemplative. Prudent, to direct your actions well, in accordance with reality, and contemplative, to rest in the truth, to know and love God.

Both prudence and contemplation require knowledge of reality. And it is this knowledge that we have striven to give you year after year. In all your classes, but especially in English, Philosophy, and Religion, we have pointed you towards the truth and coaxed, cajoled, prodded, and guided you so that you might look, see, understand, and affirm. Now that you are graduating, we will not be there for you anymore, or at least not in the same way, and certainly not with such frequency. Now it will be up to you to act in accordance with reality, to direct yourself with prudence. Now it will be up to you to recognize what you are, and to feed the limitless desire for truth that is so deeply rooted in your very nature as intellectual creatures. To do these things, you must know, and to know, you must see and hear.

Christ in the Gospels often repeats some version of an exhortation to seeing and hearing in the form of “he who has eyes to see, let him see,” or “he who has ears to hear, let him hear.” And this is a bit odd for a couple of reasons. One reason is that no one who followed Christ lacked working eyes and ears – because if someone did, Christ fixed them. Christ cured the blind and the deaf quickly, with a word or a touch. So, obviously, everyone listening and seeing should have eyes to see, and ears to hear. Another reason is, of course, that Christ implies that one may see but not see, and hear but not hear. In fact, he states this explicitly, and in an almost impassioned manner, in the Gospel of St. Matthew. When asked by the apostles why He speaks in parables, Christ responds: “If I talk to them in parables, it is because, though they have eyes, they cannot see, and though they have ears, they cannot hear or understand. Indeed, in them the prophecy of Isaias is fulfilled, You will listen and listen, but for you there is no understanding; you will watch and watch, but for you there is no perceiving. The heart of this people has become dull, their ears are slow to listen, and they keep their eyes shut, so that they may never see with those eyes, or hear with those ears, or understand with that heart, and turn back to me, and win healing from me.”

And what did Christ want them to see and to hear? Why, Himself, of course, and the truth that he was speaking to them. And it is that truth that we, too, must see and hear. He is not here to speak to us with his corporeal body, but the Church still is. Yet, it is not just the Church that speaks of God, that speaks truth. As King David says in Psalm 19, “See how the skies proclaim God’s glory, how the vault of heaven betrays his craftsmanship! Each day echoes its secret to the next, each night passes on to the next its revelation of knowledge; no word, no accent of theirs that does not make itself heard, till their utterance fills every land, till their message reaches the ends of the world.”

The entire world, all of creation, quietly shouts the glory of God and proclaims the truth, if only we can see and hear.

So, how do we see and hear? Well, here is my advice to you, in a form so simple and so familiar that I hope you remember it: Be Quiet.
