For Troubled Times, a Dream or, Rather, a Prayer

Grave evils threaten the Church and mankind.

These evils cannot be averted by human means; they can be dispelled only by the divine life of Jesus within us. A great battle goes on between good and evil, between order and chaos, between the Church and apostasy.

This battle will find many hearts not ready for it: Priests, souls consecrated to God lack a holy life; in every city, in every place we can lament scandals. The shepherds are drowsy, dragging on, without the strength to revive a flock that slips away from them, clergymen no longer zealous...

But... “Nations will rejoice together with your people, O Lord”, because your Word of life will convert them all. I firmly believe this, and I trust in You! Who will be the Angel of the resurrection, when will he come? I do not know it, my Lord, but I trust in you and you will send him when the darkness of this apostate world will be complete.

I dream of the effusion of the grace of your Spirit as a bountiful stream; the call to the people that may shake them deep into the core of their bones...

...I dream of a new blossoming of the Clergy and Religious, the rebuilding of the foundations of the family, the conversion of the heretics and pagans and the universal peace... in your kingdom, for the Church, and in the Church.

I dream of life, the true life sprouting from the ruins of the dead life of the world. I dream...

But I am sure that my dream will become reality because I trust in you, my God!
